Anand Kumar, (Simraungadh 4, Bara, Nepal) B.B.A (I Semester)

"Glocal University is one of the finest universities in India. Considering the truth that Ragging is one of the serious problems of Indian Educational Institutes, the university itself is committed measure to curb the menace on the campus. All the faculties here are supportive and make us understand complex concepts in simpler way. Situated in the foothills of Shivaliks, the environment of the place is peaceful and so, well suited for education. The university believes that Not Education but Knowledge is the key to success. Extra-curricular activities is the soul of the culture. The University organizes at regular interval of time many activities like Biz Quiz, LANfest, other talent hunt programs like Singing, Rangoli making competition and many sports competition like cricket, football, badminton, basketball, table tennis, Chess, etc. Moreover, awareness programs like Gender Sensitization have also been practiced. I am proud to be a part of Glocal family.

Nchimunya M'hango (Lusaka, Zambia) B.Pharm(I Semester)

The Glocal university has a lot of warm and wonderful facilities that are welcoming and very willing to help out students, concerning any kind of problems they may face. Academically the university has well qualified lecturers who are dedicated, and deliver the best of their Knowledge and experience. Not only does the university have good lecturers, it also has a well equipped library that has almost each book for the courses. The environment is very conducive for studies, because it is very quiet and peaceful. One more thing I like about this place is the discipline that the management has towards the students as without discipline learning conditions are not conducive. Faculties are highly professional and well behaved, having a very formal and effective persona. My experience here has been so great, because I believe that education can take place anywhere with the right mindset and attitude.

Saurabh Guleria, (Vikas Nagar) B.Tech-First Year

I am delighted to say that I am pursuing my B. Tech. in Civil Engineering from The Glocal University. It is an opportunity to study B. Tech. from a different perspective. There are many factors that brought me to this place such as highly qualified faculties, lush green and clean environment and many more. Apart from making the students academically sound Glocal aims at grooming the overall personality of aspirants, opening new dimensions to them in the form of extra & co-curricular activities. Here at Glocal, I am working for the club of photography to further my knowledge in the field of photography. Quizzes, debates, sports activities organized here time to time add on a lot to my attitude and personality. Not only this, there is a huge benefit academically, by being able to exchange ideas with students from different countries. It has also tremendous learning experience to interact people from such a wide range of cultural background. At the end, I would say that I am confident that the shared collection of experience at Glocal is one that will not be easily forgotten.

DEMONETIZATION

Demonetization is the act of stripping a currency unit of its status as legal tender. Demonetization is necessary whenever there is a change in national currency. The old unit of currency must be retired and replaced with a new currency unit. There are multiple reasons why nations demonetize their local units of currency. Some reasons include to combat inflation, to combat corruption, and to discourage a cash system. The process of demonetization involves either introducing new notes or coins of the same currency or completely replacing the old currency with new currency. In 2016, the Indian government decided to demonetize the 500- and 1000- rupee notes, the two biggest denomination notes. These notes accounted for 86% of the country's cash supply. The government's goal was to eradicate counterfeit currency, fight tax evasion, eliminate black money gotten from money laundering and terrorist financing activities, and promote a cash less economy. By making the larger denomination notes worthless, individuals and entities with huge sums of black money gotten from parallel cash systems were forced to convert the money at a bank which is by law required to acquire tax information from the entity. If the entity could not provide proof of making any tax payments on the cash, a tax penalty of 200% of the tax owed was imposed.

While there is much talk about the GDP impact of this decision, a unique feature of this episode is that there may be other costs that fall disproportionately upon the poor. The rich have access to electronic payments, employees who will stand in queues to obtain cash, and savings that are used to cope up with a decline in income. The poor lack all these. If a poor person suffers an income shock, or is not able to get medical treatment, the consequences are enormous for the individual, but the GDP impact may be negligible. In terms of welfare implications, these costs matter a lot more than the impact on GDP. Estimates based on national surveys show that cash earnings of the poor are small, and they usually lack cash savings. So, it is argued, they are likely to seldom visit a bank branch or post office, and they are not particularly inconvenienced.

The original assumptions underlying the decision remain unclear, but it seems to be causing considerable harm. All this harm is likely to buy us only a small dent on the black money problem and the elimination of a few hundred crores of fake currency. This is not a good bargain, especially considering the long-term consequences. I am not sure the government intended this bargain. Still, at the moment, the decision is popular. The government would do well to reflect on the failures of the policymaking process that led to what appears to be a bad decision. If this was indeed a genuine mistake, and government's assumptions turned out to be wrong, it would be unwise to risk making more of such mistake in an impatient pursuit of lofty goals. Our government's capacity to run complex programmes is very limited, and it is best expended on higher priority problems, such as building the criminal justice system, achieving public health goals, improving learning outcomes in primary education, building a credible defence apparatus, ensuring provision of sound infrastructure, ensuring clean air and water, and so on.

WE-THE TOYS...

Every person has their own thought,
Whether it is related to God.
I have a different imagination,
Which encourage me for poetry preparation.
"Creator of the world" is like a boy,
Who loves to play with every toy?
One who loves to rule?
And no one can make him fool.
He was not able to handle his guys,
So, he decided to rule over his toys.
For joy, away from his friends,
Think an idea beside the trends.
Prepare a plastic model of the world,
Man, Women, Plant, Animal and Bird.
Told his morals through his man,
If someone avoids, the horror began.
Some people are good and some are bad,
He will question the deeds after the death.
If anyone takes his creation for misuse,
He punishes them without any excuse.
Toys made by him are extraordinary,
Don't know why, but underestimating his legendary.
Remember:
He is one who will reward for life's
'TAPESTRY'
But just one bad deed can make him show
his 'TASKMASTARY'

OUR AUTUMN CAME!

Our autumn came
In coffee cups
From clouds of white
To swirling brown,
All wrinkly leaf,
On muddy ground,
The sugary sweet,
Sipped and stirred,
With silver spoons
And parting words,
A butter knife
On buttered toast,
A morning mourned
With marmalade.
No fond farewell
In silence made,
Just falling tears
In fallen rain,
All sunshine gone
No warmth remains,
In empty cups,
Our Autumn came.

Life: The essence of good deeds!

Life is like a relation of two
One who created, other is you
From a little ovum
He created whole of human
From top to bottom
His designing is awesome
Hills, valleys, plains and coast
From head to heart till the toes
He formed earth and sky
Some to swim, some to fly
Hell and heaven, days and night
Long or short, dark and light
He developed all as same
Black and white all have came
We created difference, he did not
Caste, colour, religion and all
This world is nothing but fake
Time to praise him not to make mistakes
All will be back from where we come
Last day of ours will be same as one
Only good deeds will make you promoted
Bad ones will be crying when exhausted
Prepare for the result which will be declared
No another chance start to be prepared
Every story has an ending
How this will end its still pending....
